

Marking Policy

Reviewed; March 2017

Next review; March 2018

Why do we mark work?

- to value the children's work
- to show that it has been monitored, evaluated and reviewed
- to encourage good standards and take the child's learning forward
- to support children by showing how their work can be improved
- to highlight a repetitive problem
- Practical activities such as PE, art, D&T, reading etc. feedback will be verbal positive and instant.

How we mark

- Work should be marked with the child or as soon as possible after the child has completed their work. Marking needs to be smart and impacting, symbols are often used for speed and understanding.
- Children can be helped to assess their own work evaluating their own and others progress through peer marking.
- If the child has made a large number of errors they do not all need to be corrected. Common faults, spellings, grammar and punctuation should be picked out for practice. A sentence may be highlighted to be redrafted. Up to 3 spellings can be written below or the teacher can highlight the spelling error using sp in the margin. If the child is able they would be expected to use a dictionary or the internet to check and change spellings.
- Whenever possible children are encouraged to spend time looking at where the teachers have suggested improvements and either practice or correct the mistake. Teachers will build review time into their sessions.
- Homework can be given credits to award effort and progress.

Letter/Number reversals and basic spelling mistakes – children are expected to know days of the week, months of the year and reversals of numbers and letters where these are incorrect, children should be made to edit immediately and progress should be seen instantly.

Learning objectives and date

The Short date to be written in Maths and the long date to be written for Literacy on the top line, leave a line then the learning outcome or task number.

Targets

Milestones and end of year expectations are used in the front of books to highlight targets for each child. These are highlighted by the teacher and in KS2 children will use these to RAG their understanding.

Assessment for Learning

From foundation onwards children are encouraged in some situations to self-mark, under the teacher's guidance, for instant feedback and to develop the beginning of self-assessment. Children are encouraged to use check lists and learning walls for self review before handing in completed work. Teachers including general teaching assistants can mark work.

Tickled pink- children highlight their successes in pink. They should highlight the targets they are currently working on, not the skills they have mastered.

Purple to perfect- children edit or highlight any corrections they have made with the purple pen.

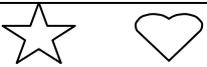

Red, Amber, green (RAG)- is mostly used in maths, children highlight the levels of understanding using these colours.

Let God's love shine as we care for each other and learn together.

Green pen - all adults use green pen to mark work

- In books we expect to see more tickled pink in KS1 as in order for children to highlight success, but also develop a love of writing and understanding of what is needed in writing. In KS2 we expect to see more purple to perfect as children are now confident at spotting weaknesses and are able to edit further.

Literacy symbols

	A phrase or word has been missed out.
	If a child makes a mistake, the word or sentences should be added in brackets and a cross above.
	Highlighting grammar or sentence structure
	Capital Letters
	Punctuation
	Paragraphs
	Spelling needs correcting
	Independent work 100%/Guided work 50% /Paired work 25%
	Credit point
	Next steps
	Something impressive (wow)
	Say the sentence
	Think about this again.
	Check work
	Verbal feedback
	A target has been seen and the adult is very pleased
	Finger space needed
	Squiggly line to highlight an error

Mathematics

	Correct
	Incorrect
	Next steps
	Verbal feedback
	A target has been seen and the adult is very pleased

Let God's love shine as we care for each other and learn together.